>PROFILE: The cyber-terrorist known as Reina Roja has shown advanced tactical training and use of military-grade equipment consistent with SpecOp training. It is possible she was a member of US elite Electronic Warfare Service. The psychological profile is consistent with a veteran, mercenary, or soldier from the war – thorough, goal-oriented, fearless, and tenacious.

All indications show she is incredibly intelligent and likely has a number of psychological disorders. There appears to be enough evidence to support a tentative diagnosis of intermittent explosive disorder, paranoid personality disorder, and schizoid personality disorder.

>SUMMARY: Based on multiple piggy-backed packets, she is well-connected in both the runner and Ecuadorian insurrection communities. She is one of the prime suspects in the Philips affair. Current location unknown. It is also believed she is responsible for a number of sensitive files finding their way into the hands of an Opticon investigator, as well as proprietary information found on various grey and black market eCommerce sites. Weyland Consortium and associates have been the primary target in the majority of her hacking activity. See files 32Az-32Fd for the details of each cyber assault. The inability to make a positive ID suggests multiple reconstructive surgeries and mods. Opal Protocols are in place.
